

National Gallery

We are very fortunate to have a museum like the National Gallery virtually on our doorstep. It contains a world class collection of European paintings, from 13th to 20th century, and offers our students an invaluable opportunity to see first-hand extraordinary, important, and beautiful historic artworks. It has an excellent Education Department whose staff do a brilliant job of helping our students think about, discuss, and engage with the works in the gallery's collection.

In October 2017, over two separate days, we took the whole of Year 7 to the National Gallery. While there, the students had sessions with the gallery educators, explored the collection, and drew some of the artworks in their sketchbooks.
