

National Gallery

Over two days in mid November we took all of our Year 7 students to the National Gallery in London. While there, the students had the chance to take a close look at some of the gallery's vast array of historical paintings, which goes from early Renaissance (around 1400) up to Post-Impressionism (in the early 1900s). It is an extraordinary, world class collection which we are very lucky to have virtually on our doorstep.

Our students had talks, in among the paintings, led by members of the Gallery's education team. They also had the chance to explore parts of the collection independently and do some drawing of the artworks in their sketchbooks.

The visits were extremely informative and inspiring for all of us!
